07-12-2017	Can innovative capital approaches finance social defaults?	The UN estimates an annual investment gap of $2.5 trillion in developing countries to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals. This session aims to answer some tough questions like Where will this capital come from? What formats will this capital get deployed through?What needs to be done to support the 'enabling ecosystem' for this capital gap to be bridged?
07-12-2017	Can we design a health-economy that prioritizes well-being for all?	Health care systems around the world are stressed and unable to keep up with the growing demand. The high cost of care on one side and the growing and aging population, with an increasingly unhealthy lifestyle and unfavourable environmental conditions on the other, are sure to increase this pressure. There is hope with advancements in healthcare, but can we sustain? Can we ensure that inclusiveness of all is at the forefront of our healthcare strategies?
07-12-2017	Can we embrace a future of work that has no jobs?	Driven by the acceleration of connectivity and cognitive technology, the nature of work is changing. This session will explore how to solve for the impending unemployment crisis while imagining and preparing for an audacious future that may not require work.
07-12-2017	Can we feed the planet without destroying it?	The act of feeding the global population puts more stress on the planet than any other activity. Now, imagine a planet with 10 billion. As diets shift to be more resource intensive and populations grow, we're running out of resources to feed ourselves sustain-ably. In this session listen to and engage with thinkers & doers who are imagining a future of food security and prosperous small farmers while ensuring our resources are protected.
07-12-2017	How do we solve the capital challenge to ensure equitable energy access?	This session aims to assemble capital mobilizers from the private equity sphere to collectively identify and brainstorm upon the most promising strategies to leverage existing financing mechanisms and finding new ways to blend commercial, impact and concessional capital to help such entrepreneurs and create an ecosystem to enable an expanding network of energy access in the developing nations.

08-12-2017	Can we keep farmers in farming?	More than 1 billion smallholder farmers, almost all in the developing world, grow 70% of the food consumed each year. Join us in a conversation with experts to explore how we can secure the incomes of farmers and lay the groundwork for a more stable food future.
08-12-2017	Demographic dividend vs. liability: Securing jobs in the age of automation	The age of automation is here, and the World Bank estimates that automation threatens 69% of the jobs in India today. There are fears that automation will worsen this situation, but could an alternate future be imagined? There are serious systemic flaws in the Indian economy which has led to years of "jobless growth". Could automation force a reorganization of industry such that newer jobs are created at a much faster pace? What might those future scenarios look like? This session will explore these questions in conversation with the panelists as well as audience members.
08-12-2017	How will the circular economy manifest in the developing world?	If we continue to grow at our current pace, we will need 3 planets to sustain our current levels of consumption. Our future depends on shifting from take-make-waste business models to circular ones. But what might the circular economy look like in the developing world where millions are yet to access even basic quality of life standards? How can we foster new business models and support job growth while maximizing resource efficiency and encouraging regeneration? In this session, we will hear from several circular economy experts and dive into case studies that reveal the circular economy in action in the Indian context.
08-12-2017	Impact Investment: Tipping Point by 2020 and the Future of Impact Investing	Should Impact Investing become mainstream? or Should mainstream funders aspire to become impact investors? What is the path ahead? Join this session to follow this exciting discussion.
08-12-2017	Is the lack of a shared moral compass the biggest barrier to making healthcare affordable and accessible for all?	There have been countless instances of patients losing their lives as they are denied health care due to higher costs, lack of beds, and absence of adequate workforce. Just like food and education, the right to healthy living and health care should be for all. Yet, over the years, health care seems to have become an industry that is profit driven. Does this mean making profits and providing universal health care cannot go hand in hand? Is the dilemma often about choosing between right or wrong or between the two right choices?

08-12-2017	Acting Today to prevent a Future of Food Wars	200,000+ new mouths need to be fed every day in a time when every 1 degree rise in temperature during farming seasons results in a 10% loss of yield. This session will explore how capital, innovation, and new partnership models can disrupt this current trajectory.

08-12-2017	Health financing models to make care accessible & affordable for all	India's total health expenditure (THE) as a percentage of gross domestic product (GDP) has decreased within the last 10 years, since it became a lower middle-income country. Meeting the goals of universal health coverage will require increased funding; however, such increases will not occur until budget deficits are reduced. However, its time reflect on What are the key drivers that should make health financing more inclusive? Will focussing on the end user based financing models results in +ve Rols?
08-12-2017	Key challenges and solutions for the growth of DRE enterprises	This session aims to bring together stakeholders with the necessary experience and core-competencies to crack the DRE growth conundrum in India by exploring mutually beneficial symbiotic relationships. The session will also focus on learnings and best practices that can be implemented by early stage decentralised renewable energy enterprises in India on their path to scale. The objective will be to arrive at an action oriented road map for assisting the growth of clean energy access enterprises across the country.
